

OLIVER AMBROSE

SONGWRITER & MULTI-INSTRUMENTALIST

Biography:

Oliver Ambrose is a songwriter and multi-instrumentalist from Oxfordshire, UK. Having started his musical journey age 11, Ollie found his passion for music early in life and from then on has never looked back. He has played in countless bands over the years, recorded in several top studios and played to thousands of people.

After leaving his last band to pursue a career in songwriting, Ollie has written dozens of songs in a style that reflects all of his musical influences; including Oasis, Chris Cornell and several country and blues artists.

Ollie's work has already had praise and interest from the likes of Rick Nowels (Madonna, Lana Del Rey, Dido), Sil Wilcox (Manager of 'The Stranglers'), BMG, Phrased Differently Publishing and many others.

He is currently looking for opportunities as a professional musician and songwriter, including song cuts with major artists, sync work and co-writing.
